

Autism and Sensory-Related Training: Auditory Techniques

For over a decade, MTI, a non-profit group, has provided affordable training and information seminars to caregivers and professionals on issues that affect persons with developmental disabilities

About the Presenter: Terrie Silverman, M.S. received her master's degree in speech/language pathology in 1973 from Rutgers University and in November 1992 was certified as a Berard Auditory Integration Training practitioner. She has been working with children, adolescents and adults with autism and developmental disabilities since 1974. Ms. Silverman speaks and provides consultations in public and private schools, residential facilities, group homes and with multidisciplinary teams in hospitals, clinics and schools, in an effort to bring sensory balance to individuals with sensory processing differences and developmental disabilities.

Agenda:

Background about auditory stimulation and how it affects individuals with autism and/or other sensory- related disabilities.
“Optimal environmental” techniques for caregivers, such as preferred music and a variety of sensory regulating approaches, as well as an explanation of the Berard AIT program, which has documented positive results with individuals with a range of developmental, learning and behavioral challenges.
