Community Care Announces PACE Program Expansion

RACINE, WIS. (January 25, 2018) – Community Care, which currently operates Programs of All-Inclusive Care for the Elderly (PACE) in Milwaukee and Waukesha counties, announced today that it is planning to expand its services to include Racine County by early 2018.

According to Kenneth Munson, CEO of Community Care, “PACE is a great option for adults 55 years of age and older, who are frail and/or have physical, intellectual or developmental disabilities, but want to remain independent in their homes.”

The program provides comprehensive medical, behavioral health and dental care, prescription drugs and long-term supports and services including: adult day services, home care, transportation, employment services and rehabilitation services.

“As our nation’s population continues to age, we are thrilled to be able to expand our PACE program to Racine County,” added Munson.

The fully integrated, provider-based model of care revolves around an interdisciplinary team of doctors, nurses, therapists, social workers, dietitians, drivers and others who provide direct care and services to meet the individual needs of program participants.

Currently, there are 122 PACE programs available in 31 states. Community Care is the only organization in Wisconsin providing a PACE program.

Community Care’s PACE program currently serves 493 adults in Milwaukee County and 83 in Waukesha County. The organization has been serving Racine County since 2007 with its Family Care and Family Care Partnership Programs and currently has 1,413 members in Racine County.

According to Sister Mary Rose, who has been a member of Community Care’s Milwaukee County PACE program since early 2016, “Being involved in PACE has greatly reduced my limitations. It has been a great relief to know that I can get help when I need it. I feel a sense of comfort in knowing that when there is something wrong, I’m able to easily connect with a PACE doctor either by appointment or through a nurse.”

Alfred P. utilizes the PACE Day Center at the Vliet Center in Milwaukee and echoes Sister Mary's Rose's comments. "The PACE Day Center gives me something to do and gets me out of the house. I like talking to the people and just being here."

Most members of the PACE program are low income and therefore eligible for Medicaid. PACE has an option for interested parties to privately pay for the Medicaid benefit by paying monthly premiums. Interested participants must live in a service area that operates PACE and be age 55 and older. PACE has been a successful model of care because it integrates across the full continuum of care and services, regardless of who is paying.

According to Shawn Bloom, CEO of the National PACE Association, "PACE really is an innovative model that continues to adapt and change as public policy, technology, and even the seniors who we serve change. That being said, I believe PACE is successful because it is based on building relationships between enrollees and the members of the PACE interdisciplinary team. It reduces duplication of services and makes the care process much more efficient."

About Community Care

About The National PACE Association

The National PACE Association works to advance the efforts of Programs of All-Inclusive Care for the Elderly (PACE®). Congress recently passed bipartisan legislation to adapt the PACE model to serve other high-cost, high-need individuals who could benefit from highly coordinated personalized care. Policy-makers see a key role for PACE in serving younger individuals with physical or mental disabilities or those with multiple chronic conditions.
